

Christian Gollier is a renowned economist specializing in uncertainty, environmental economics, and finance. He co-founded and directs the Toulouse School of Economics Foundation and is Director of TSE. Gollier has authored over 130 articles and seven books, including the award-winning The Economics of Risk and Time and Pricing the Planet's Future. A contributor to IPCC reports, he advises governments on ecological transitions. He is a past-president of EAERE and has held a Collège de France chair. His public-focused book Le Climat après la fin du mois highlights climate action urgency.