

Dr. Fatih Birol has been the Executive Director of the International Energy Agency (IEA) since 2015, leading its modernization efforts by expanding membership to major emerging economies and broadening its mandate to include natural gas, electricity, and clean energy. Before this role, he spent over 20 years at the IEA, serving as Chief Economist and leading the World Energy Outlook. Dr. Birol also chairs the IEA Energy Business Council and the World Economic Forum's Energy Advisory Board. He has been recognized by Forbes as a top energy influencer and has received numerous international honors.