

Dr. Stephen Luke Kirama [Cert (Philosophy); B.A (hons); M.A in Economics; PhD (Economics); is a Senior Lecturer and Senior Consultant at the Department of Applied Economics, University of Dar es Salaam, School of Economics and a Research Fellow at the Environmental for Development Tanzania (EfDT) Centre with over fifteen (15) years' experience in the: Energy (Natural Gas, Oil and Electricity), Environmental and Natural Resources (Wildlife, Forest and Marine); Public Sector Economics (budget and Taxation), Transport Economics (Roadway Pricing, Budgeting, Value for Money for Transport); Health Economics (health financing), Social Infrastructure (Education and Health) Economic Evaluation (EE); Impact Evaluation (Mid Term and Final Evaluation) as well as on Monitoring Evaluation (M&E). Dr Kirama's interest on Research and Consultancies is but not limited to: Public Spending and Growth, Energy (Natural Gas, Oil and Electricity); Impact Evaluation, Natural Resources (Exhaustible and Renewable); Poverty Analysis and Wildlife. Dr Kirama's teaching subjects are currently Environmental and Natural Resources Economics; Health Economics, Energy Economics, Public Sector Economics, Econometrics, Labour Economics, Quantitative Methods and Evaluation (Monitoring Evaluation and Impact Evaluation).